What would it be like to wake up 100 years in the past, back to the year 1983.

The Adventurous Day

By Laura Radermacher

It's 6:00 in the morning. I wish my robot's alarm system wouldn't work just once. I am so glad the shower has been made automatic. I have enough buttons to push all day. Powdered eggs again? I wish the kitchen robot knew how to cook something else. I better pick up a new tape for powdered waffles for the robot after I'm home from the learning center. It'll be a nice change. I better get going or I'll be late!

Wait a minute! What's going on? Where am I? Where is everything? Where is the people stop for the people mover? I'm going to be late if I can't figure out where I am. What is this big yellow thing coming towards me? It's not a monorail. It's nothing I've ever seen before. It says school bus. I wonder if that takes me to the learning center. This is an interesting means of transportation, extremely primitive compared to our more advanced people movers.

I've never seen any of these people before. They are definitely strange looking, but the girl with the red hair standing up looks very much like my own kind. I wonder if she is lost too? I wonder if we are going to the San Marcos Learning Center. What is that ancient looking building we are passing? Hmmm, 7-Eleven. So many people are walking. Why don't they use their portable hover crafts?

Where am I now? San Marcos High School, whatever that's supposed to be. At least San Marcos sounds familiar. I don't understand why everybody is running around. I think I'll ask. "Excuse me. What was that noise that came out of the wall and made everyone suddenly run?" . . . A bell to go to class. How interesting. Something tells me it's going to be a spacy day.

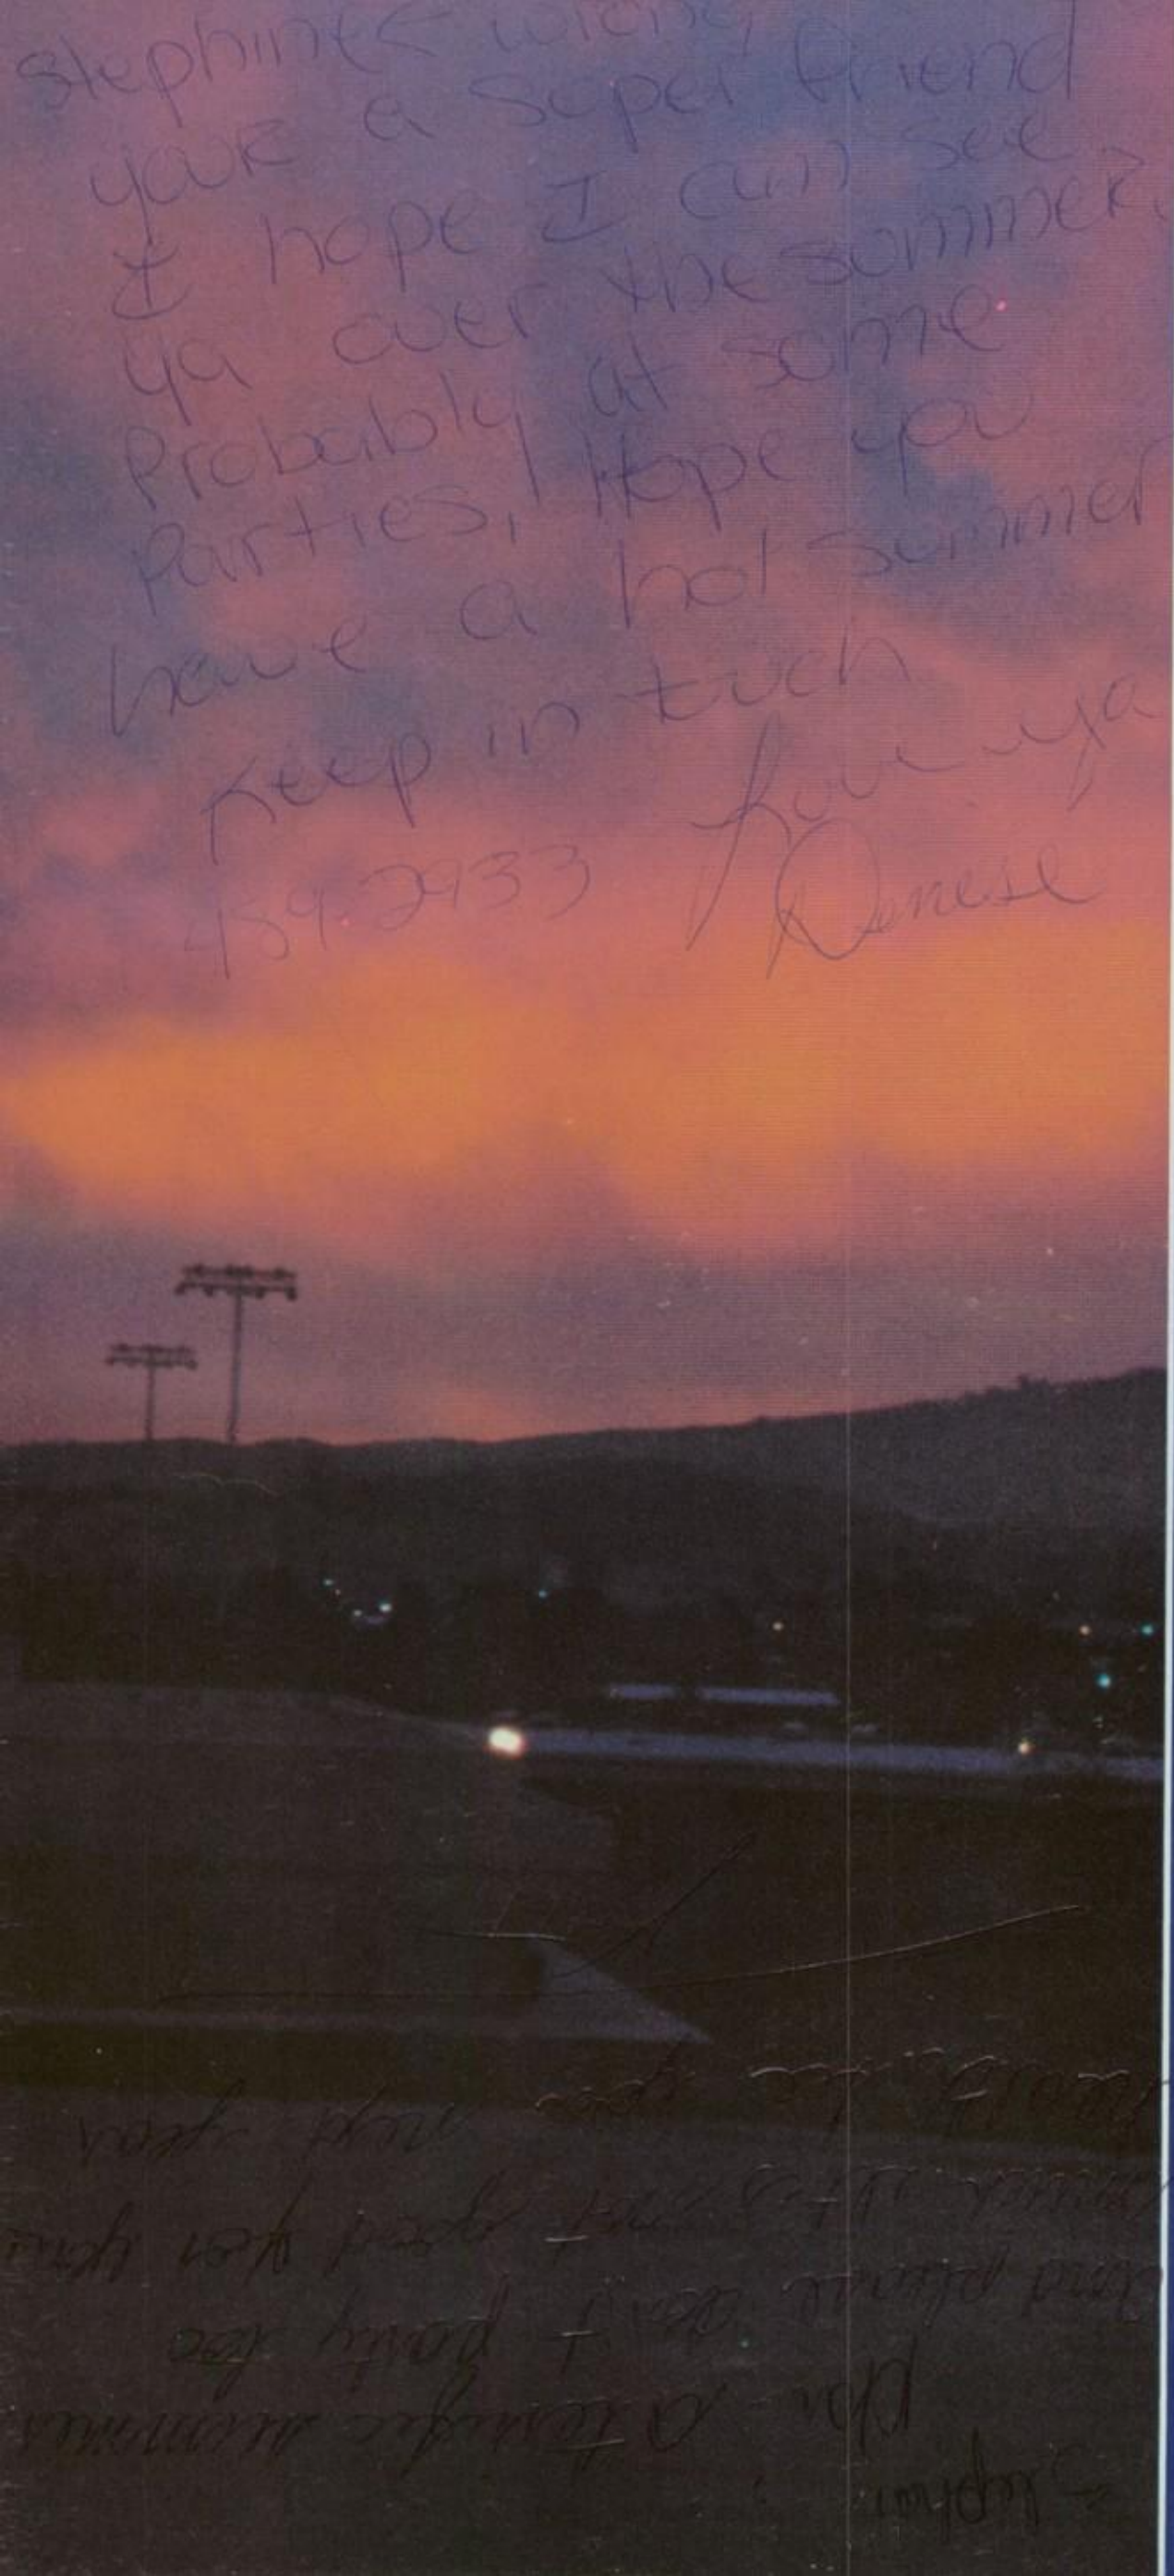
▲The final chance for Brian Thoburn to get his assignment finished. The library is also a great way to get out of the cold. For whatever reason, it was nice to have the library when we needed it.

▶Early in October, a group of girls use the cross walk connecting the popular "Carl's Junior" and the school.



▲Most of us won't forget this loud year in class with tarring, hammering, and whatever other remodeling was needed. Hopefully it will be a while before the school needs to be worked on again. We need some peace and quiet, but most of all fresh air!

◀The one time of the day when this school is actually quiet: Sunrise. A good morning to everyone. Hope you didn't stay up too late doing homework.

▲Maybe this scene looks different to the people who were not in off-campus P.E. but Gary Olson seems to be enjoying the game of racquetball as his racquet easily connects with the ball.

much. I hope we can become better
friends.
I hope you have

Time for Class

I think I'll investigate a class to find out what it is. How are you supposed to sit in this strange contraption? Life is so much easier where I live. I wish I was back home in San Marcos with my dog, F20 and going to the learning center for my usual two hours of study with my remote control computer. The only thing I hate is doing everything by hand instead of speaking into the computer.

This room is filling up with a lot of people. I wonder why. Why is that elder trying to make everyone be quiet? I never thought I'd miss my digital instructor. This instructor keeps yelling, "Class you are no longer in junior high now!" This must be what they call a class. He keeps referring to them as freshmen. They must be fresh, like the newly dehydrated meat of my time.

What is this paper he just handed me? I don't want to do this. I can't even write unless I have something that types. Let's see what the instructions are . . . Write a prepositional phrase. Extremely simple work these people are doing.

I wonder how long we have to sit here and do this. Now they're correcting work from the other day. Their lives would be much easier if they had a RXY Computer. Maybe not. After an hour of typing my hands begin to stiffen.

Everything here is so primitive and different. Could I be back in time? "Excuse me, what year is this?" . . . It's 1983. I am back in time! This could be the learning center that my great grandfather went to. Maybe I'll see him while I'm here. My friends will be envious that I got to go back in time 100 years and got the chance to meet my great grandfather while he was my age.

Oh no, not another "bell" as they say. The learning process for today must be over. At least they are advanced in one way: learning for only two hours. But why do they study only one subject? How come nobody has left the learning center?, I mean school. Isn't school over? "Excuse me. What do we do now?" . . . We have a break. I guess this will be my next experience.

▲Renee Miller, Lisa O'Rourke, Mary Streshly, Tanya Buchanon, Starla Sireno, and Chamaine Jensen are actually following the rule of the classroom: all are working. But then again, nobody would dare fall out of line in Ms. Thoennes's English class!

◀As Mr. Layton looks over class papers, Brenda Brandt manages to sneak in a question about an assignment.

So This Is What They Call Food?

Wow, it looks like a meeting at that building down there. I think I'll investigate. Why are people exchanging moldy green paper and round pieces of metal for funny looking colored rocks? Could this be what they call food? "Excuse me. What do you call this place and the things you're eating?" . . . This building is a "cafeteria" and the colored rocks are "M&M's."

There goes another "bell." I wonder if learning and eating for the day is over. Everyone is going back into those "class" places again. This learning center is very different from the future!

Now it's mathematics. Maybe they aren't as advanced as I had thought. It has now added up to four hours of study compared to my two hours a day. I wonder if I'll look the same to the people who are a hundred years ahead of my time as these people here look to me?

Another 'bell," now what? Some are going to the cafeteria again and others are leaving to a place called "Carl's Jr." That must be one of those historical fast food chains that I've learned about in history. I'm going to go and see what makes it so great.

"What do you mean, I need an 'off campus pass'?" . . . "I can't leave without one?" . . . I feel like I'm in jail here. Is this a bad place? Was my great grandfather a criminal? Perhaps there is a purpose for these "passes." It could protect the people from getting in trouble with elders. Perhaps it protects the learning center, too. Another bell?! Everyone is returning and going to a class again. When will this day ever end? Now it's biological study. This should be interesting. Today sure is a long day!

▲After a quick trip to 7-11, Sally Dockery and Tina Juliano sit and discuss their day during lunch.

►Lisa Bonaparte waits as Mr. Glusac checks her off-campus pass. Lunchtime is always pretty hectic.

▲Here's another famous line at the coke machine. This year with all the new freshmen on campus the lines are longer than ever before. It's a good thing that Jennifer Miller and Debra Granich know that everything comes to those who wait.

What Is Spirit?

This biological study sure is interesting, but it can't compare to the "pep assembly." That was so exciting. Everyone was "spirited." I wonder if that is a disease that these people get. It's so nice that all the diseases have been exterminated for us.

Everyone seemed to enjoy being spirited. My ancestors are definitely strange. My great grandfather played football. I always wondered what made football so exciting to him. It must be the cheerleaders that make it so great.

The pep assembly was very exciting. Everyone talked about the magician who is coming next week. I wonder if I'll still be here or if I have to go home. Learning for today has been worth every minute. The people here don't know how lucky they are to live in this time period. Everything in my time is so much more complicated.

When I go back to 2083 I'm going to suggest pep assemblies and longer days. Maybe the elders will think it's a step backwards, but I think it's a giant step towards humanity.

If we do have pep assemblies we'll need a football team. Maybe after tonight's football game I'll know what to do.

◀After the pep assembly, cheerleaders, Linda Gonzales and Debbie Allman, get together for a short routine.

▲Roof rattling yells occur when the different classes battle to see who is the most spirited. Here, a group of seniors try to surpass the previous three classes.

Will It End?

Not another bell. Could this be the end of the day? Everyone seems to be leaving; it must be the end of the day. I wonder what they do after learning. At my house I have to program the robots and work with my comptometer. I wish I could find another line of work, 200 dollars an hour doesn't buy me anything.

Here are girls working on something in the halls. Wonder what they are making. It says something about Mt. Carmel. Could that be where we have races to see who can program a computer with seven games and two history lessons in one hour? We sure do things differently than they do it now.

Out on the grass are people keeping in shape. I'm going to try running when I get home. First I have to find the yellow thing to get me there. There are so many people I don't know if I'll ever find my way home.

Wonder why people are complaining about doing homework. Could that be the same as the work I do at home? I doubt it, they don't even have robots here. "Excuse me. What did you ask me? . . . Am I going to the football game here tonight? Yes I guess so." This sounds exciting, I'm staying here to wait to find out what a football game is all about.

▲It's time for homework. After school, Michelle Wade knows what it's all about to study hard. If only there was an easier way!

▶It's our own little rush hour after school. Bill Phillips and Mark Bozzuto are about to give up on looking for their bus.

▲Running away from homework, Jeff Johns, Vinnie Lostetter, Tyler Campbell, and Steve Schaeffer keep in shape for cross country.

◀There are so many things that must be done after school. Chamaine Jensen, Tracy Craker, and Paige Brown draw up posters as part of Pep Club.

Unique, This Day They Call Fridays

So this is a football game. I definitely must suggest this to my elders. They would enjoy it. Those girls down there making everyone scream are filled with spirit. In fact, they made me spirited. I only hope this disease doesn't kill me!

Behind me, everybody is in line for food. I've been told that this building was donated to the school to feed all the hungry mouths at football games. One of the symptoms of the disease "spirit" must be hunger. Look at that man stuffing a long piece of bread with something yellow on it in his mouth. "Excuse me, sir. What are you eating? . . . A hot dog?" . . . "I think I'll try one." I would like a hot dog. . . . How much money? . . . I don't have any money . . . Will you take my code card and charge it to my business? . . . How rude! "I've never been so insulted in my life. Imagine that lady telling me to stick it up my nose. The code card wouldn't fit up my nose anyway.

The crowd is screaming, "We got a touchdown." Yea, we got a touchdown. What is a touchdown? I don't see any spaceships landing. What's everybody getting so excited about? Now it's half-time. Looks like a parade. This music is unfamiliar to me. But I think I'm going to die. This spirit disease is stronger now than ever before.

The football games were exciting! Where do we go from here? Tomorrow is Saturday. I'm going to find out what some people do for week-ends before they all go home. con't.

▲Number 37, Spero Aretakis lunges forward to tackle his opponent. Plays like this generate excitement and tension as the Knight fans look on.

▶Feeling a sense of school pride, Sherry Burwell and Jeanette Hodges stand waving their arms to the slow beat of the Alma Mater.

▶It's time for competition in Escondido. Make-up is very important to Luann Bates and Lisa Romberg before they perform.

The Final Experience

They're all doing their own thing. Some go shopping, some work, and some play. I like the "week-ends" here. Wouldn't you like to come with me to enjoy my weekend? Saturday morning, I go to a hover craft race. Later, after I wi: , it's time to clean house. Even with remote control, directing robots to clean house is really strenuous work. Then it's time for a galactic party in the space center.

Sunday is quieter. I turn on the air purifier so I have new air for the next week in my house. Then I watch Rachel Welsh on ny telescreen. At night I enjoy listening to tunk music. It's very similar to 1983 punk music.

The people of this time go to arcades. I found them exciting because they are futuristic. We have the same games, except they are extremely complicated. Making your own games will stimulate the brain. It's also more convenient when you can play at home.

Oh no, I'm back in 2083. The earth that I live on is back to its usual. There is the people mover. Now I can go stock up on tape programs for different foods. I'll go at 12:30 on the next people mover.

Thank you San Marcos High for letting me experience your day. Enjoy your high school life. It's more important than you think.

▲Is ice cream your bag? It seems to work for Julie Swords. Everyone does something different over the weekend.

More and more each year the number of students at San Marcos High increases. Soon, the school itself may have to be enlarged to accommodate the quickly rising number of new freshman students. Even though our school is not as physically large as some of the neighboring schools, the number of students per class is way above the average for San Diego County.

PEOPLE

"People in the year 2083 will be adapted physically through their navels to plug into computers."

Success Despite Class Turnout

Turnout at meetings could have been better this year according to Freshman Class President Daphne Chargualaf. The majority of the people who showed up to the meetings were interested in what the freshman class could contribute to San Marcos High School for their first year. Car washes and selling candy bars were the major fundraisers. Money went to pay for the Saint Patrick's Dance.

SOPHOMORES

Sophs Plan Dances

It seems that every class has one major responsibility: the dances. This year's sophomores were no exception. President Cara DeSio, Vice-President Janeen Budnjak, Secretary Sandy McDonald and Treasurer Dana Krisjanson planned the Snowball Dance held in December and the computer dance in April. Money raised for thes dances came from selling pennants an buttons. Cara DeSio felt that the tur out at the class meetings was fairl good but there could have been mor sophomores to help with the year activities.

Knights Of The Year

Capturing the title of "Knight of the Year" is an extremely high honor. Each year one boy and one girl, both seniors, are nominated by the faculty for their outstanding achievement at San Marcos High School. This year we are proud to honor the new Knights of the Year: Gary Reynolds and Liz Pew.

A student at San Marcos High for all four years, Gary Reynolds had his foot in many doors. In his freshman year, Gary went out for the Freshman Football team. He also participated on the tennis team for two years and the basketball team for four years.

Even though Gary was active in a variety of sports, his academic achievement never suffered. Gary has been a life member of the California Scholarship Federation and in his senior year he was selected CSF President. After three years as a member of Key Club, he was also elected President. Other leadership positions he held during his senior year were ASB Athletic Commissioner and the French Club Vice President.

This year's female Knight of the Year, Liz Pew, was an outstanding choice. In her four years at San Marcos High, her skill in running has earned her recognition and numerous awards. Named "Most Valuable Player" for her performance in track during her freshman and sophomore year, Liz went on to become the "Avocado League Champ" in the 330 low hurdles and the mile relay.

Cross Country was another sport in which Liz excelled. A familiar face at the CIF finals, Liz was the "All Avocado League Selection" and "All CIF Selection 2nd team." "Liz is a super-outstanding young lady!" said Ms. McCarthy. "She's an excellent athlete and is personable to all."

It's no wonder she was named "Outstanding Player" this year in field hockey. In three years, she was "Avocado League 2nd Team Selection" in her junior year, "Avocado League 1st Team Selection" in her senior year, and "CIF 1st Team."

Besides sports, Liz has accomplished much in academics and student government. She has been in the California Scholarship Federation for three years. She has also held an ASB office and has been a four year band member.

The Talisman Staff would like to congratulate both Gary and Liz for their accomplishments at SMHS and we wish them luck in whatever they plan to do after graduation.

Throughout the year, many activities studded the calendar. Events used to promote school spirit and participation were held. School life would be dull if there was never a pep assembly or a lunchtime activity to keep us spirited and crazy.

Lunchtime Activities Keep Spirit High

In the beginning of the year, there were lunchtime activities just about every Friday. These activities were conducted to promote school spirit and for class competition. The various activities were invented by Dale Standfast, who was also the official judge at each competition. Some of the activities consisted of: Watermelon Seed Spit, Rootbeer Chug, The Car Bash, Warrior Hunt, and many others.

Contestants in the Watermelon Seed Spit had to spit seeds of a watermelon that was covered with whipped cream into a nearby bucket held by a class member. They were not allowed to use their hands which made it a very messy situation.

The Rootbeer Chug was much easier. Contestants had to drink a bottle of rootbeer, then race to a specified area. The winner was the person that could do this in the shortest length of time.

The auto shop painted an old car with the names of teachers, for the Car Bash. Contestants paid $1.00 for three swings at the car with a sledgehammer. If a person knocked off a door, they got another free swing.

Before lunch on the day of the Warrior Hunt, Dale Standfast hid replicas of Fallbrook Warriors. Anyone could participate in this contest. The object of the hunt was to find the most warriors for your respective class, and return them to your class president. The class president then turned them over to Dale.

There were many participants in each activity. Even though most people didn't participate, these contests helped to promote our spirit.

▲The after effects of one of the lunchtime activities. It cost a dollar per swing with a sledge hammer.

▲A volunteer participant drinks his fill during the rootbeer chug.

Pep, Pep, Hurray!

Where would we be without pep assemblies to boost our spirit? We probably wouldn't be nearly as spirited for most football or basketball games. Pep assemblies aren't only for spirit for football and basketball, though. During some pep assemblies, some other sports are recognized, such as: cross country, tennis, and volleyball. Members of these sports are introduced to the school by their coaches. The coaches mention their team wins and losses, honorable players, and who they will be playing against that week.

J.V. and Varsity Cheerleaders perform chants in which the crowd can participate. Tall Flags, Short Flags, and Drill Team perform to songs played by the Band. An added attraction were the Flag Boys. Their premier performance was at the last football pep assembly of the year. The crowd really seemed to enjoy their imitations of the Short Flag girls, especially the Kick Line.

At every assembly, a class competition was conducted in which each class shouted a particular phrase for the week, such as, "Go Knights, beat the Cougars!" The class that shouted the loudest received the spirit stick for the week. Judging was a difficult task, but usually the senior class won the prize.

Assemblies Attract All

Compared to past years, attendance has increased at assemblies. Many possibilities for this might be the great variety of subjects and topics presented. For fun there was the Oggie Doggie assembly which showed the end result of hard work and patience in training to show what a dog can do. On a different level there was the magic show which emphasized the ability of the human mind and how believing in something gets results. On an intellectual note there was a guest speaker who had the ability to show what America should mean to us all. Last but not least assemblies were held to honor students of the quarter, a new idea which encourages students to take school more seriously.

Dressing Up For Homecoming Week

In past years, Homecoming Week was usually a week long affair. This year though, Homecoming Week consisted of only three days. During these days students dressed in the appropriate attire for the day. Though some were stared at and thought to be different and strange, it didn't seem to bother them much. The three spirit days were: Clash Day, Hat and Glasses Day, and Blue and White Day.

On Clash Day, wherever one looked it seemed that there was someone that must have put his clothes on in the dark that morning. Since there were no set standards for the proper way to Clash, everyone's individuality became visible. Some wore plaid pants with polka dotted shirts for a pattern contrast, while others opted for the color contrast, such as pink pants with a green shirt and orange shoes.

The proper attire for Hat and Glasses Day was just that, hats and glasses. Hats ranging in size and color from brown cowboy hats to yellow baseball caps could be found paired with mirrored sunglasses or extremely large Disneyland glasses.

Blue and White Day seemed to be the day in which most people participated. One reason for this was probably that it was less embarrassing to be seen wearing blue and white than to be seen in something that clashed. Another reason was that everyone has something blue or white in his wardrobe.

Homecoming Week was also paired up with Halloween. Ghosts, goblins, ghouls, monsters and such could be found roaming our halls. Perhaps they were in search of a house to haunt or even a dark graveyard in which to lurk. More than likely, they were just waiting for the sun to go down so they could enjoy the evening's festivities.

Homecoming Week and Halloween were conducted to promote school spirit for the upcoming Homecoming Game. School spirit appeared to be higher than ever during those two periods.

Knights Are Forever!

Being the 22nd annual Homecoming, the ASB decided to make it a special evening by putting maximum emphasis on the royalty. Earlier in the evening, Senior Varsity Cheerleaders, Tall and Short Flags, Band, and ASB members gathered to dine with their former counterparts of three years ago because, "They were all seniors when we were freshmen and we thought it would be interesting, as well as comfortable to have the opportunity to share our mutual experiences with them," said Andy Fiamengo.

Instead of using the conventional convertibles to ferry the royalty, pilfered trucks were used for an original approach. Each truck was decorated by its respective class with balloons and crepe paper of various colors.

The theme song for the night was "Tomorrow" from the hit Broadway musical Annie performed by the San Marcos High School Band under the direction of Mr. Samenow. Articulating every word to its utmost was teacher turned Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Mongoven. Among the recruits drafted by the ASB to aid in the night's ceremonies were: Mr. Katayama, Mrs. Garrett, and Mr. Kellison.

Besides being Homecoming Night, this was also a very special night for a group of 28 other people. Those people were the Senior Varsity football players. At the last home game of the season, these seniors were acknowledged for the enjoyment they had given us during the season and through their high school careers.

The Knights were playing not only to defend the Lancers of Carlsbad but also Reye's Syndrome, a disease which afflicts children from infancy to about 19 years of age; the cause and cure are still unknown. For the season, the Knights unofficially adopted Affee Duvall, a victim of Reye's Syndrome, who is the daughter of John Duvall, an employee of the San Marcos Union School District. Each player contracted with friends and relatives to earn a set amount of money each time they scored a point. All money was donated to the Reye's Syndrome Foundation.

It was a special night for everyone involved from the spectator to the participant. This was one Homecoming that won't be soon forgotten.

▲As was once said by Shakespeare: " 'Tis a wild Night." Margie Chargualaf and Rellie Kirwan certainly seemed to enjoy their night.

◀Princess and Prince Suzane Arceo and Jim Terral appeared to be star struck during the Homecoming ceremonies.

No Time, Like Showtime

Each year the spirit groups display their talents in a special production called Cavalier Cavalcade. Always a memorable experience, it was particularly meaningful for the drill team. For them it was a farewell performance since the decision had been recently made to disband the organization. These enthusiastic girls joined the others in the show and planned difficult routines to perfect within a short period of time. The participants carefully choreographed their musical numbers and then sacrificed precious extra hours to practice until they got it right.

Mrs. Dolan and Ms. Dunn produced and directed the program which turned out to be one of the most dazzling and glamorous activities of the year. Among the groups doing the Cavalcade were the Flag Boys, Tall Flags, Short Flags, and the Cheerleaders.

Here Today, Gone Tomorrow

It has been said that if one keeps his clothing long enough, it will become stylish again. Well, exactly that has happened. The trend seems to be heading back thirty years to the era of the 1950's. One major change is in the skirt lengths. The once popular mini-skirt is now back in full force. Sleeveless vests are also rather trendy. Yet another 50's type style of clothing is the argyle sweater, both for guys and girls. Looking in one's parents' closet would yield the fashion of yesteryear, now the ever popular penny loafers.

Fads-n-Fashions will always change. What was popular just a year ago, would be considered "out" today. For example, last year wherever one looked, he could almost always spot someone playing with a Rubik's Cube. Today, Rubik's Cubes are a thing of the past, perhaps even considered an antique by some standards.

Remember, don't become too engrossed in today's fashion, for tomorrow, something will replace it.

Your Choices for 1983

Like Fads-n-Fashions, people's favorites are ever changing. It seems that something that is the overwhelming majority's most favorite one month is past history the next. Some things are tried and true and remain longer than others though. Then there are certain favorites that remain for years and years and seem to become tradition.

More dances, approximately one per month, highlighted the school year. More live bands performed instead of pre-recorded music. "Some of the bands left a lot to be desired but others were okay," said Laurie Duggan. She continued, "There should be a few more people to attend them."

Dance styles have changed considerably from previous years. Slamming, popular during the New Wave craze, has been replaced by a free form, more individual style.

From The Beginning To The End

Whether local or worldwide, there always seems to be something going on in the world of news. Hardly a day goes by that a news event of interest doesn't happen to some person in various parts of the world. There is news that marks the beginning of an event, the end or may even portray a "first" that has happened. Some news is good while other is bad, bringing joy to some and sadness to others.

Many events happened during the year that signaled a beginning. A new type of music was played on the radio station 91-X. It changed its format of rock-n-roll to new wave. E.T., the extra-terrestrial, visited the planet earlier in the year and stole the hearts of many. On a national level, Deukmejian was elected as the governor of California. Locally, San Marcos High School student, David Chin, won the NASA award for his space shuttle project.

Quite a few events were brought to an end through the course of the year. The musical group, The Who conducted its farewell tour in October. The ever popular T.V. show M*A*S*H ended after 11 years of air time. 1982-83 was marked with many deaths, including Brezhnev, Tennessee Williams, and Paul Lynde. Maker of the famous DeLorean automobile, John DeLorean's career was brought to a screeching halt because of his alleged involvement with cocaine.

During the torrential rains of February, the Queen of England and her husband, Prince Philip, visited San Diego for the first time. Another first was the vandalism of many buses of the San Marcos Unified School District. After such an eventful year, one can only wonder what the future holds.

▲ In 1982, the school buses took quite a beating. The vandals were not caught.

▶ Tylenol, America's favorite pain reliever, suffered drastic sales reduction when cyanide was added to the medicine. A few deaths resulted.

◀ In early '83, San Marcos and the rest of California was bombarded with heavy rains which caused floods and even a few tornadoes.

▲ When Queen Elizabeth II arrived in San Diego, many curious people tried, without success, to catch a glimpse of royalty.

▲ The movie, E.T., the Extra Terrestrial, spawned multitudes of products ranging from stuffed animals to a video game.

▼It's the freshman syndrome! Will they ever overcome the urge to rest in trashcans?

What's a Freshman?

The yearbook staff interviewed many people to get their opinion on this question: What is a freshman? Here are some of the replies. The names of the respondents have been omitted to protect the innocent.

"A freshman is a greasy-haired twerp that really isn't sure of himself. He or she is someone who only wears the fads and runs around screaming and playing like a 7th grader."

"A freshman is a lower form of life evolved from the junior high usually found in small groups lost in the halls."

"A freshman is a little punk!"

"Freshmen are refreshing! Freshmen are eager in their quest for knowledge, spontaneous in their reactions to a new experience, and enthusiastic in their allegiance to San Marcos High School."

"A freshman is someone who is new in high school and still acts giggly and immature. I feel sorry for them at times, because they have such a low reputation. No one wants to associate with them."

"A freshman is a confused lost poor soul."

"I remember when I was a frosh, I tried to be cool like everybody older than I but I just didn't make it. Maybe that's it. They just don't make it."

"Freshmen are important to the school. Without them, whom would we pick on?"

▲Some last minute childishness by freshmen. Even after school they act like frosh.

Gotcha!

Wearing crutches, being cool, shoving, laughing, hugging, wanting their pictures taken in front of the library represent a few of the candid poses on our campus.

The yearbook photographers have spent their leisure time taking candid pictures to show their fellow classmates, fans, heroes, and enemies what students are doing between classes. Some other examples include: barbequing hotdogs, and scaring people away with their faces.

Although it's not possible to capture all the between class antics, the photographers have tried their best to show some of the memorable moments.

The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat were clearly evident throughout the year in sports. It seemed that every team just wasn't quite up to expectations but was, nevertheless, still worth watching as usual. Spirit and enthusiasm from the crowds was always high even on the coldest evenings.

Injuries Really Hurt

What would Friday nights be without the roar of the crowd, the clashing of the gridiron and the long lines at the snack bar? Although the Knights had a tough year, their loyal fans continued to cheer them on. Coach Broach explains that most of their losses were due to injuries suffered by some veteran players. Although the team was one of the largest ever at San Marcos High School, many players were new. Coach Broach is really looking forward to next year.

Enthusiasm Shows

The Girls Varsity Tennis team worked hard all season and earned 2nd place in the Avocado League, the first time a tennis team from San Marcos High School has ever done this. Coach Katayama is very proud of his whole team, especially the three Noba sisters: Emma, Luiggina and Montserrat. Emma and Luiggina Noba took first place in doubles. Montserrat, Emma and Luiggina all made it to the CIF individual play-offs and performed exceptionally well. Coach Katayama has a right to be proud.

Running With Style

The Boys' Varsity Cross Country had a relatively good season with 3 wins and 3 losses. They depended on Juniors Vinny Lostteter, Jeff Johns, John Ragusa and Tyler Campbell. Vinny Lostteter won "all league" honors again this year. Jeff Johns was the team's most consistent performer. These Juniors now have to their credit 13 league wins against only 5 losses in their 3 seasons of competition. Coach Harman predicts that these boys are the favorite next year to win the Avocado League Crown.

Girls Strut Their Stuff

Led by "All Avocado League" seniors Liz Pew and Cindy Villalpando, the Girls Varsity Cross Country won 3 and lost 3 in league play. Senior Jeanine Wheeles became the first girl to win four varsity letters in Cross Country. Freshman Michelle Wade competed on the varsity level and was one of the team's most consistent runners. Spikers Gain Experience

This year's Varsity Volleyball team had a rough time according to Coach Kelsey. She explained, "Our play was hot one game and cold the next. It went that way throughout the whole season." With more experience and practice, Coach Kelsey is optimistic about next year, since difficulties this year were primarily because the team was so young. Senior Camille Briggs was chosen for All-league first team. Senior Most Valuable Player Renae McEwan was selected for All-league second team.

As the Ball Bounces

Swooping, scoring, and rebounding were the all important skills demonstrated by the varsity basketball team. Although this team fell short of last year's champs record, they were all talented in their own way. Ball handling seemed to be Geoff Reynolds thing, while rebounding was Curtis Bloom's and Sam Masanai's job. Bringing in the scores was Chico Goff and Billy Ramirez. Everyone on the team always pushed themselves to the limit.

Watch Them Flick, Scoop, And Pass!

"I think we have a pretty hard working and talented group and we want to be Avocado League Champs." Those were the words of Coach McCarthy who would like to see the team go to CIF. Although returning players primarily carried the team, the new members learned quickly. One of the high points of the year was winning the first league game against Oceanside because it was a crucial game. Some valuable players cited by Coach McCarthy were Susan Lemmon and Kathy Freeman who "have improved and matured a great deal this year." Pew, who hustles all over the field, was also named.

Coach McCarthy adds, "Everyone on the team is doing well and is fairly equal on the basis of skill level. The whole team needs to be more aggressive, but it is improving during each game."

Young, But Talented.

As the defending Avocado League Champions the Knights started their season off right with a 1-0 win over the Ramona Bulldogs. With a new coach, Tony Contreras, many people were curious as to how the Knights would adjust, but the combination seemed to work beautifully. Coach Contreras remarks, "I've really enjoyed this team. They had a great attitude and worked well together."

Inexperience And Rain Prevail

Rain caused havoc for this year's softball season. Due to the weather, softball players had little time to develop strategies. Games and practice were often interrupted. To compensate, practice was even held on the blacktop and doubleheaders were scheduled to make up for lost time.

Mr. Gann knew before the season started that the team would be young and inexperienced. The only returning starter, Janae Cranney, led a team made up mostly of freshmen and sophomores. Before the rain, Mr. Gann felt they were making progress, but found it diffucult to evaluate a season whose games were often rained out and rescheduled.

We've Got A Hold On You

As a participant sport, wrestling is unique. Important aspects in wrestling are self confidence, strength, quickness, and guts. According to Mr. Hartman, "An important point wrestlers need to remember is, it is just you and your opponent on the mat." There were two outstanding wrestlers on the Varsity Wrestling team. Rick Lambert at 170 lbs. has won four tournament championships and is considered at this time one of the best in the country with a current record of 21-1. Also, Adam Cole at 158 lbs. has one tournament championship, and a third and fifth place. He has a current record of 17-4.

Next year's season looks promising for the Varsity team. Out of 21 wrestlers who lettered, 20 will return next season resulting in an experienced team. Mr. Hartman states, "To have two or three outstanding individuals who win or place in tournaments is exciting."

A New Start

Bob Kellison faced a new challenge. After a great record as a J.V. coach, his transition to Varsity Girls' Basketball went easily. The team has had three successful seasons, and Coach Kellison had a positive attitude about his new assignment.

What does it take to make the team? Coach Kellison believes that, "The team should be a good representation of S.M.H.S.; something that the student body can be proud of." Girls participating have said that strong legs, strong lungs, and a lot of willpower are essential for success. Coach Kellison hopes that the girls enjoyed the competition and gained individually from the experience." He continued, "If both the players and the coach show improvement, then the team becomes competitive and victories will follow."

Avo. League Contenders

San Marcos Varsity Baseball team had more people out for the squad than ever before, and Mr. Layton was looking for more than just the best 15 players. Last year there were some great individuals, but they had some trouble coming together as a team. This year, a strong effort was made to improve team performance.

Scrimmaging and, of course, lots of running were determining factors for Varsity Baseball. Some of the best examples were this year's returning players Randy Davila, Chico Goff, John Broussard, Rick Rinehart, and Al Hernandez. Randy Davila the pitcher for the Knights this year came back after suffering from knee injury. Randy said, "Playing all of our games with intensity and hustle made us contenders for the Avocado League." Rick Rinehart the centerfielder also felt good about the outcome of the season. When asked, Rick commented, that Escondido and Ramona were the teams to beat.

Impressive Both On And Off The Court

During the past 5 years the fighting Knight Varsity Tennis team has enjoyed great success because, "Our young men were willing to sacrifice for the good of the team," explained Coach Storrs. He emphasized their "esprit de corps" which always made them an Avocado League threat. Rivals have learned to regard the Knights as a team to be reckoned with. Coach Storrs proudly comments, "As always we let our actions on and off the court speak for our success."

Coach Storrs loves the challenge of motivating and guiding young men to reach their potential as student athletes. He treasures the friendships that are made on and off the court and will always try to teach what he considers the important aspects of the sport: pride, poise, and perfection.

Always Up To Par

Golf has never had the followers that football or baseball have. But the members that participate in this sport never complain. The 1983 Varsity Golf team hoped for an extremely productive season with the strong skills of Bob Dias, Felicia Brown, and Todd Neal.

"This is the best team I have ever had the pleasure of coaching," said Coach Mike Beckley, "I am certain we will go far this season." Both the Varsity and the J.V. golf team played at Hidden Valley, Torrey Pines, and Ramona.

On The Road Again

In the past years San Marcos' track team has been competitive but they haven't had the depth that the team needs. Coach Swonetz feels that each individual should reach his own goal. For some runners that goal is just completing a workout, for others it's reaching that all important objective, winning. The highlight of their season was the Michelob Invitational where they got to watch and meet the world's top athletes.

Returning participants strengthened their performance in their favorite events. Crowds watched Kevin Gilmartin skip over high hurdles and Dan Schloss soar over the bar. Cory Johnson demonstrated his flexibility with the pole vault and Leo Mendelsohn showed his strength with the shot put and discus.

In The Race In '83

Having fun and working hard is what Girls' Track is all about. The Girls' team looked out for each other during the season. Even though the track team was young and few in number, they pushed themselves to the limit to earn every win, medal and title they received throughout the season. One of the highlights of the season was having three girl athletes compete in the Michelob Invitational.

The returners were senior hurdler Liz Pew, sophomore sprinter and hurdler Shelley Gierat and sophomore triple jumper Carol Chin. Sophomores Debbie Karrer and Teresa Anderson were our distant runners.

All the girls gave their best to finish daily practices. They worked continuously to make this season a success. To do this they had to dedicate themselves to Coach Bob Harman and the rigorous work-outs.

Pigskin Power

Biting and scratching themselves to the top, the junior varsity captured a record of 7-2-1 and second place in the Avocado League.

With great achievers like quarterback Greg Helm, center Bronco Farwell, and fullback Jeff Brio, the offense was able to push their opponents defense into the ground! Also with awesome hitting from the defensive line of Danny Singleton, Mike Wood, and Scott Beardshear, they were able to hold off all offensive attempts. Shooting Stars

The junior varsity had a great year but didn't go as far as they wanted to. With four juniors and nine sophomores, the junior varsity team individually demonstrated great talent.

Starters Greg Helm, Paul Nicolas, John Dougherty, Scott Hartwig and Vinnie Lostetter with back ups Pat Peters and Bill Watson made up one of the best teams in the Avocado League. All were ready to dribble, drive, and shoot their way to an Avocado championship. Coach Thoma had this to say: "We had an excellent team this year and I'm looking forward for all to gain experience and excel in this sport next year."

What a Racquet!

The San Marcos Girls' Junior Varsity Tennis team had many accomplished players. The first half of the season was shaky with losses to San Pasqual, Carlsbad, and Oceanside. But, the team came back to defeat each of these opponents.

Kristie J. Hunter, the Most Valuable Player, had one of the best records in the Avocado League with 31 wins and 5 losses. Carol Chin, Most Improved, had a 24-12 record; while Anne Gann and Jeanette Gerardo, also Most Improved had the best doubles record at 13 wins and 7 losses. The overall league record was 8 wins and 4 losses.

Better Than Ever

This year's Junior Varsity Volleyball team had a great season finishing with a league record of 10-2. Coach Tony Contreras, Captain Keri McEwan and Co-Captain Margaret Mahoney led the team to a second place standing in the Avocado League.

Keri McEwan said that in most cases, the team faced their opponents with confidence. However, in the game against San Pasqual, one of the toughest matches, the team was unable to meet the challenge.

Whether the game is won or lost, the junior varsity team came out the winner for the experience and training necessary for next year.

One Step Ahead

It was a running year for the J.V. Boys' Cross Country team. With a lot of new talent the team had an excellent season. They were able to set a record for "Most Wins" by a junior varsity team in the last 12 years at San Marcos High School. J.V. Cross Country wound up their season with 5 wins and 1 loss to make it a great year for cross country.

Feet . . . Take Me to the Finish Line!

The J.V. Girls' Cross Country had an outstanding season. The leading runners were Becky Karrer and Missy Pond. Individual members of the team, throughout the season, ran up to an amazing distance of 500 miles each. To add to the amazement of all, the team was undefeated throughout the season. They were titled Avocado League Champions for the first time!

Responsibility and dedication are very important to make up a winning team. Knowing this, girls gave up some of their weekends, including Friday nights.

Upcoming Talent

Even though this year's J.V. Basketball team consisted of mostly ninth and tenth graders, Mr. Gann felt that they had the enthusiasm and ambition that contribute to a winning team. However, with a new coach and new players, many hours of practice were needed in order for the girls to come together as a team.

"Practice started late for the J.V. team," explains Coach Gann, "and playing basketball requires a lot of physical work." Still he hoped to finish with at least a 500 season. Coach Gann felt he had "a great group of people to work with and it was a learning experience for all involved."

Stick Action

For Sharon Serrano, coaching the junior varsity team was a funfilled experience. Daily practices and super coaching accounted for the well learned skills applied against the opponents in the Avocado League. Some of the skills mastered in the season were dodging, flicking, and ball control. One of the Squires' highlight for the season was shutting out San Pasqual 3-0.

Even though most of the hockey players were first year members, their team spirit made up for their inexperience. Outstanding players throughout the season were junior Adriana Ortega, freshman Carrie Lostetter, and sophomores Stacey Baird, Cara DeSio, Missy Pond, and Shelley Gierat.

Making friends and helping each other were the keys for a successful season. By the end of the season they finally came together and worked as a real team.

Experience Isn't Everything

This year's J.V. Baseball team had experience, but experience alone is not such an important factor when all the other schools' players are just as experienced. So what makes the difference? According to Coach Mongoven, "Baseball ability, attitude, and preparation both mentally and physically were key factors for the Squires."

Coach Mongoven began the season with a great attitude towards his team. The key positions were catcher, pitcher, shortstop, second base, and center field. And how did he keep his team in shape? "Run, run, run, and run," he says. We can expect to see some of his players in varsity competition next year.

Burning Up The Bases

Last year the J.V. Softball thought they were doing great, but they had not anticipated this year's victories. Softball '83 was the best season in San Marcos' history. Even though the torrential rains postponed the majority of their games the team pulled through with flying colors, boasting a 10-2 record.

Robin Paladino was an influential player for San Marcos, leading the team in their winnings. Sandy Donaldson, the present coach, finished her last season with the J.V. Next year she will move up to a varsity position. J.V. girls will be looking forward to a new coach and another season on top.

Kicks Are for Kids, They're After Goals

The San Marcos Junior Varsity Soccer team had a very productive season. Captains Tai Dinh and Kevin Cruff put forth outstanding individual efforts as did Jesus Sanchez and Peter Czerner. Coach Greg Akin remarks, "They're a bunch of really talented kids. I hope we're together again next year."

For many, wrestling isn't all glamour. To get recognition, wrestlers have to work very hard and don't complete the year without sacrificing their free time. A team showing promise is the J.V. Wrestling team. This building year will result in more experienced competitors.

"Wrestling," states Mr. Hartman, "appears to be catching on little by little. As a spectator sport it is exciting and thrilling. As a participant sport, it is unique and will always draw that certain type of 'individual' that gives his all."

The Game Of Love

Nineteen players tried out for twelve positions on this year's J.V. tennis team. In Coach Katayama's view, this gave him not only a talented team, but a team with a great attitude as well. Even though the team was fairly inexperienced having only 4 returning players, they strived to capture first place again this year in their league.

They practiced 2 to 3 hours a day, 5 days a week. Also, during each practice a conditioning drill was held. "Coaching is a very positive experience for me," Coach Katayama explains, "It lets me interrelate with students in a non-academic setting which contributes to a more positive working attitude and working relationship." What is required to play tennis? "A racquet, ball, a court, and a desire to improve."

The Happy Hackers

Learning the basics is one of the main objectives with any young team, but this year's J.V. Golf team must have practiced quite a bit before the season started because they were amazingly impressive. Coach Ken Broach remarked, "I really enjoyed coaching golf this year because all the students tried hard to improve themselves." This held true, and although the team was inexperienced, every match was fairly successful.

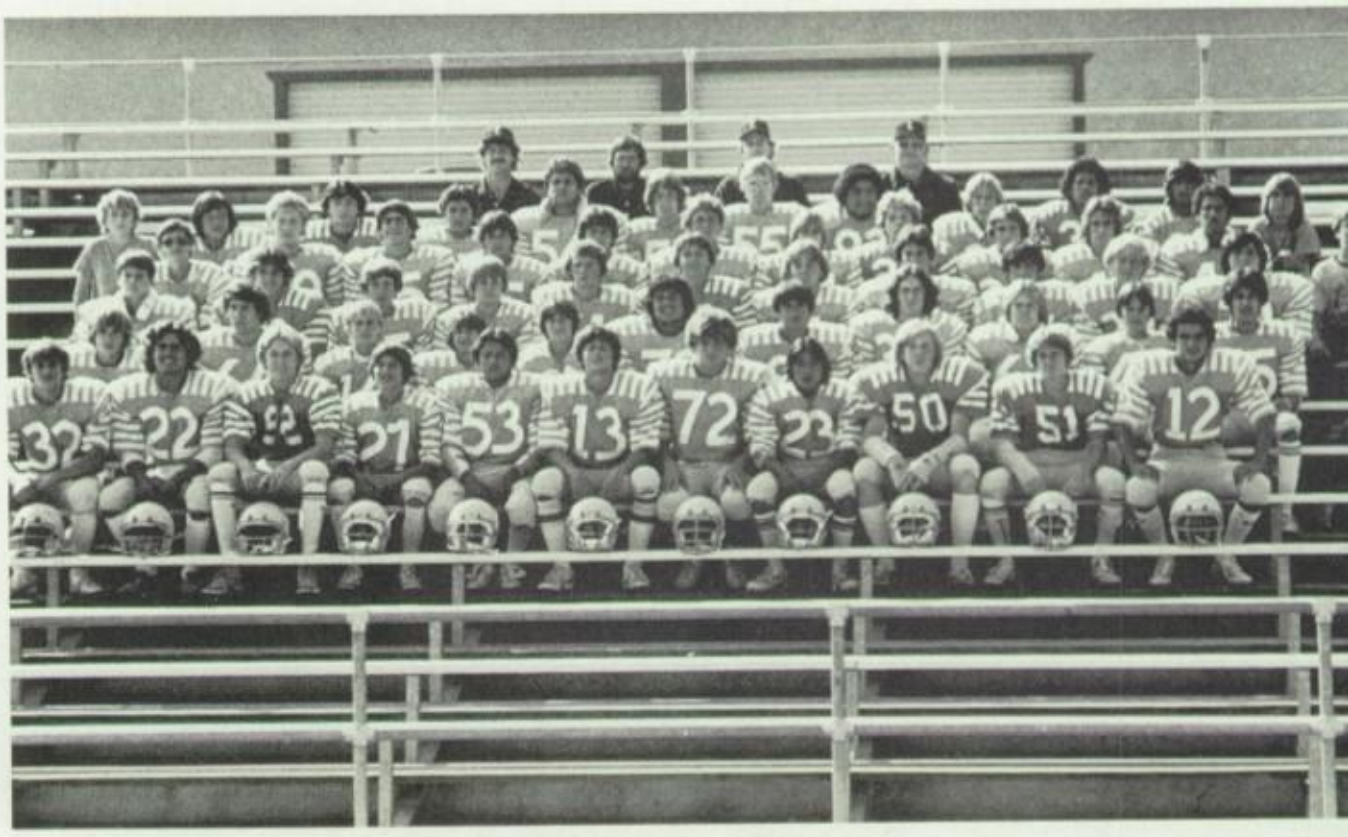
Tackling, Frosh Style

Blocking, tackling, and running their opponents into the ground, the players finished with a respectable 6-2-1 record. With the excellent coaching staff it wasn't hard for each group to explode and dominate their adversary.

Coach Ron Layton had some fond memories of the team and had this to say about his players. "They all played with great character and always came in the clutch. Having no loose ends, the whole team played as a family. One great thing I enjoyed se ing was the hitting. There wasn't an dividual that didn't want to kno somebody down! We will be looking f ward to great progress for every person the coming years."

In conclusion, "If I had to pick one play from offense, and one from defense would be Rich Greeneich and Fernan Olando who each did an exceptiona good job."



Ending up tied for first, our Frosh Football Team had one of its best years ever. Stars Of The Future

Having players that were willing to work gave the Freshman Basketball team their energy to keep on fighting. However, raw talent this year didn't prevail as the Freshman team only hung on to a 2-16 record.

With starters at point guard, Bobby Dudley, posts, Mario Lira, Steve Dotson, Dan Cohen, and wings Danny Masiani and Jim Terral, the Freshman team was ready for action. Fired up for game time were the Freshmen, but as Coach Hejduk said, "We had excellent athletes, but the chemistry for this team just wasn't quite right." He continues, "All of the players worked hard in practice and it showed on the court. I'm looking forward for all these players to excel in this sport in the future years."

A Team With Hustle

In the words of the immortal Coach Gnibus, this year's Frosh baseball season was "eventful." The players had attitude, aptitude, hustle and "good clean lives." The key positions for the team were catcher, pitcher, shortstop, 2nd base and centerfield, since the middle of the field needs to be strongest.

Coach Gnibus kept his players solid with stretching and running exercises. He hoped to accomplish a positive winning attitude among the players on the team and emphasized leadership qualities to build pride and self confidence.

Greatest Sports Legends

When news spread around the school that Willie Stargell and Jayne Kennedy were filming their show "The Greatest Sports Legends" down at the baseball field, many students went to catch a glimpse of these famous people.

For years, our school has been privileged to host the television show. In the past, such athletes as Bruce Jenner, Pete Rose, Brooks Robinson, Johnny Unidas, and Wilt Chamberlain have come to our school. The good part of the event is that our own students and faculty get to participate in the filming! We're proud to be the hosts to such a remarkable event.

English Standards Are Raised.

Does a high school diploma mean anything anymore? Teachers from the English department want to make sure it will. Much time was spent in the 9th and 10th grade language classes to prepare students for the English Proficiency Test.

"Students will not be graduating who cannot read or write on a minimally proficient level." explains Linda Weston. "This means we will either see more dropouts or older students in our high schools." she added.

Computer Age Begins

What will math be like in the future? In the opinion of Mr. John Shinn, one teacher from the math department explains, "It will be affected by the computer revolution." Computers are becoming more popular with every passing year. "They are more accessible, the price is right, and the simplicity is such that even a five year old child can work with them," stated Mr. Keith Katayama. When asked if it would change the way students are learning, Mr. Katayama continued by saying, "They may be used as a motivating device, and may individualize instruction." So we may see computers at home, along with more of them in the school classrooms.

Spirit and Pride Hard to Find

What is our school lacking most? We have the opinion of Ms. Lynne McCarthy when she said, "There is lack of senior leadership each year which makes school spirit and pride hard to find." We find this true more and more each year as our seniors leave and new freshmen enter.

In addition to new freshman students, we were lucky enough to get a teacher back, Ms. Ruthe Brown. She explained that, "Returning to San Marcos High School after a year's leave of absence has been a terrific experience. I returned in a very refreshed frame of mind, knowing that teaching was the profession that I wanted to pursue and San Marcos High was where I wanted to teach." We are glad that she feels this way, because we are happy to have her back.

First Year for Honors

With the emphasis on basic skills, what programs exist for the more advanced students? The science department along with the English and social studies departments are making special efforts to challenge these advanced students by offering honors classes. These classes are taught with college materials. Strongly supporting the honors programs, Mr. Drew Swonetz says, "It's long overdue." He adds, "Those who go on to college will be better prepared and will not be as shocked by the workload." Mr. Jan Mongoven agrees that, "It's about time that our top level students were given course offerings that will prepare them for the rigors of college life." Even with budget cuts, we were able to build an honors program.

Beneficial Changes

The campus and the courses offered at San Marcos High are different from a few years ago.

All four of our social studies teachers Mr. Bob Harman, Mr. Rip Manning, Mr. John Vitulli and Mr. Gerry Franklin have been here to see the changes. Mr. Rip Manning said he has noticed the "beautification of the campus." Many plants and trees have been added and new grass was planted by the FFA students. These efforts have not gone unnoticed by our veteran teachers.

There have also been changes within the department itself including the reduction of some elective courses. "World cultures, anthropology, sociology, and world history as well as introduction to social studies were eliminated as a result of budget cuts and the partial reduction to a five period day," explained Mr. Bob Harman.

Is There Life After Drivers' Ed?

Preparing future drivers for the road is the main objective of drivers' education. The health and safety class, which is the supplementary class to drivers' education, and also a requirement to graduate, is offered to all students in grades 10-12, although it is usually taken in the tenth grade.

Some of the various things that are taught during the semester are: the rules of the road, regulations of driving, and the state driving laws. The actual driving itself is taught in five after school meetings. Driving isn't all that is taught in the health and safety class, as suggested by the course title, a section on personal health is also covered. Some of the topics covered are a section on C.P.R., the effects of certain drugs, and the causes of some diseases.

A Chance for Advanced Artists

Besides the classes offered in art, color and design, drawing and painting, crafts, and ceramics, a new opportunity was given to Mrs. Lewis: advanced studio art. This was a step in the right direction. Many students who excelled in any of the other classes were offered the chance to change their schedules to take advanced studio art. These students were not given assignments to complete, but would choose what they wanted to pursue. Art work produced by these students ranged from pottery and paintings to copper enameling and basketry. The new class gave them the chance to mature artistically.

Ms. Jeri Beliveau explains her reasons for believing foreign language is important, "As the world grows smaller, the importance of mutual understanding and appreciation grows larger." Now more than ever before, we are communicating with our neighboring nations which for the most part speak other languages.

Foreign language is a college prep course but may also be valuable in finding a job. It can help those students who might be interested in becoming a stewardess, cruise director or even a store salesperson.

Spanish and French are the two courses offered at San Marcos High. Our district is lucky to have three full time teachers in these fields: Ms. Loretta Galindo, Ms. Jeri Beliveau, and Mr. David Siebert. In spite of cutbacks, foreign language can be offered at both the junior high and the high school. Two of these teachers are able to split their time between the schools.

Industries With Practical Skills

For those who like to work with their hands, industrial art classes have been expanded and offer many exciting courses. Students had many arts to choose from: wood shop, metal shop, auto shop, and photography classes.

Photography has been a very popular class this year. Mr. Wyatt said, "This year I had the biggest number of students in my photography classes ever! I'm glad to see so many students interested, but it's much more difficult to keep organized." Photography classes ranged from beginning to intermediate. The advanced class was cut due to a low school budget.

Sewing, Cooking, And Family Living

"Homemaking is constantly changing to meet new developments in everyday living," stated Mrs. Olga Ritter. Cooking, sewing, family living and parenting are fields in which these changes are taking place. According to Mrs. Ritter, cooking techniques will adapt to new technology, sewing will be influenced by new fabrics and notions, and family living and parenting must prepare students to live in a changing world. Homemaking is important to everyone for the simple fact that we all will move away from home someday and need to prepare for that time of departure.

Inside Look At The Top

There were numerous accomplishments this year which were beneficial for our campus. Many projects and improvements included the construction of the booster club's concession stand and restrooms that were built in the football stadium. Vocational cabinetry and small engines were added to enhance the R.O.P. class. Mr. Glusac stated, "We have a great staff and student body here. I wouldn't trade S.M.H.S. for any other. We are all most fortunate to be here."

A true honors curriculum was implemented in English, math, science and social studies. For the future is a computer lab and computer science course. One thing that will be changed, hopes Mr. Walsvick, is the teacher student ratio in certain departments. He added, "Each and every school has a unique collective personality. I enjoy the staff and students at S.M.H.S. It's an enjoyable school in which to work."

Most changes were made to make S.M.H.S. a top school and the use of computers for both students and faculty helped to achieve this goal. According to Mrs. Maki, Assistant Vice-Principal, most plans were mainly to keep San Marcos a safe and sane place to attend school. Having worked at a junior high for seven years, Mrs. Maki states, "Thank goodness for high school students."

Always There Behind the Scenes

The reference room had a facelift. The artistic talents of Linda Thoburn assisted by LaDonna Adams painted a mural on the once drab and dreary walls. Donations from Wickes Lumber, Arby's Roast Beef and Linda Thoburn's own personal pocket helped cover expenses for paint and supplies. Supervising the project were Ms. Susan Lewis from the art department and Principal Wes Walsvick.

This year we received a brand-new Apple computer to help us with attendance. "The computer takes up much of our time, but in the long-run it will be easier to keep track of all the students," stated Mrs. Bucher. Even schools are learning the value of high technology.

Special Accomplishments

In the last ten years, the special education program here at S.M.H.S. has doubled its enrollment, according to George Hejduk. The program has been expanded to include off campus activities such as field trips to the Palomar Mountain Observatory, and a whale watching trip which was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. In addition, a computer in which the students learn to write sentences helped them with their command of English.

This year, more emphasis has been placed on, not only the high school curriculum but also the survival needs of the students.

Preparing them for the world of work is accomplished by college enrollment in various ROP programs, which range from food services to automotive technology. So far the results have been extremely positive in the academic and attitudinal areas, according to Mrs. Dana Pearson. The teachers are very encouraged by the students' willingness to get involved. They feel that the program improves with continued communication with the regular staff on a frequent basis. "The special education class is imperative," says Mr. Hejduk, "Without it the kids would give up."

Info. In A Flash

When it's important to get information about a college education, the career center is there. Also available for meetings and specialized activities, the career center can be reserved by different groups on campus. Due to many cuts the career center is only open when it's needed. If not open the students can go to the counselors' office for information and advice.

The career center also helps students with problems in their classes, acting like counselors in a unique way. Assistance for migrant students is also available. There is a good resource of material for professional business schools as well as information about colleges. Part time staff member Mrs. Wright stated, "The students know their interests and what they want, so all we do is show them where to go."

▲ A familiar face to migrant students, Margarita Vega aides those who come into the career center for help.

◀ Browsing through the files, Carl Daly looks for ideas.

Throughout the year, groups of students with interests in common got together to form the many clubs on campus. Clubs pursued everything from cheering the football teams on to victory to having an enjoyable afternoon fishing.

To recognize new interests in our changing times, a few new clubs were added.

Yearbook Captures Memories

Once again, the Talisman staff brings forth another memory-filled yearbook. It's jam packed with candid shots of friends, teachers, enemies, and most of all you! As time slips by, all too quickly, there will always be your annual tucked away in some forgotten closet covered with dust. Thumbing through the pages once again, you will be filled with fond memories of high school days. That's what a yearbook is for: memories. That dusty old yearbook in the closet suddenly becomes a priceless relic of the past.

As the backbone of the entire school, ASB has one of the toughest jobs of any organization. Almost every idea must be approved by them before it actually becomes an activity. Even clubs need to be accepted by ASB before they can become officially recognized. ASB also is in charge of organizing assemblies, homecoming, noontime activities, and the nominating convention. Another responsibility of ASB, which was different from years before, was having pep assemblies for all sports throughout the year.

When Ms. Dolan was asked how she liked being in charge of ASB, her reply was, "I love it! I like working with the kids on the roundtable." Ms. Dolan shares her job with Mr. Broach, both new to ASB.

Serving the community is the specialty of Key Club, an organization which teaches students to sacrifice their time to help those less fortunate than themselves. According to Keith Katayama, the club advisor, the members were willing and enthusiastic throughout their many rewarding activities. Painting curbs and a pancake breakfast were among the projects Key Club tackled to fund holiday parties for convalescents, caroling, and a toy drive for needy children. They also assisted in the Special Olympics, and held a clean-up campaign.

Grade A, Top Choice

California Scholarship Federation is a club which encourages qualified and interested students. The requirements are a strong academic curriculum with As and Bs in those classes. The number of students participating in this club is basically the same as last year. Very pleased with this group, Mrs. Richmond would like to lead them again next year. However since the counseling staff has been reduced from four counselors to three, Mrs. Richmond would like to see another teacher involved in leading the group of eighty students.

One of the primary contributions of C.S.F. members is tutoring students who are having trouble in academic classes. Mrs. Richmond commented that in the past most of the members in C.S.F. who have gone to college have had a successful life.

All Races United

A group of students, mostly Mexican, make up one of San Marcos High School's clubs known as Razas Unidas or All Races United. Even though some of the faces have changed, the members continue to offer encouragement to one another to do better and remain in school. A scholarship is awarded to a graduating member each year. This money is raised in their annual carwash.

Much of the work in the club is handled by a small number of students. Even so, when a function such as a field trip, picnic, or dance comes up, most members are present. A trip to an orphanage and a museum in Mexico were a few highlights of the year.

Down On The Farm

A club for students with a serious interest in agriculture is the FFA club. Students receive "hands on" instruction in caring for all species of livestock. They have the opportunity to become involved with plants and nursery practices. Learning to drive tractors and operate farm machinery, students are encouraged to have projects so they can "learn by doing."

FFA develops leadership on the local, county, region, state, and national level. At fairs and shows, students show project animals and are involved with other community service.

Last year the Agriculture Program (which includes FFA) was scheduled to be cut. Instead, the program was extended one year. Since the numbers are up in classes and in the FFA it would be a loss if further intended cuts are made.

Determined to be one of the strongest FFA Programs in Southern California, the club had an outstanding exhibit at the Wild Animal Park, sold plants for the Optimist Club, picked lemons at Grange to Grove, and planted 50 acres of grain for hay.

With many interested students involved in the Spanish Club, it had a very active year. The club, headed by advisor Ms. Galindo, had its annual Taco Dinner in early December. Some of the other activities planned were: a trip to Universal Studios, Palm Springs, and Mexico. Also, a Valentine's Day pot luck was on the agenda. Attendance was up this year as compared to other years. This could be attributed to the fact that there were many more Spanish classes than usual. This was the first year that there were two Spanish I teachers and two Spanish II classes. The main objectives of the Spanish Club were to learn more about the Spanish culture and to have fun!!

There was a terrific turnout of ambitious artists for the 1983 Art Club. Rip, Tear And Lacerate

There has been a drastic improvement in the caliber of the S.M.H.S. Surf Team this year. Jordan Wohl, the number one ranked surfer for the last three years, is making a name for himself as a threat in amateur ranks. Currently ranked fourth in San Diego County, Jordan has his sights set on being a professional sometime in the near future. His sponsors include: Victory Wetsuits, Encinitas Sports Center, Gary Linden, and Graley Inc.

Allen Brent, team coach for the last three years, has had the benefit, this year of acquiring a second coach. Mr. Bob Layton has been a tremendous help to all the surfers, arranging excursions to San Clemente, conducting practices, and judging many pre-seasons contests. The team would like to thank these two gentlemen for all the mornings they awoke at 6:30, in forty degree weather, to run contests. With the growing talent on the team, and the aid of our two fine coaches, this team will grow stronger each year.

May The Force Be With You

There is one bonding force holding the Science Fiction Club together. It is their united interest in the world of science fiction. "I joined because I really enjoy sci-fi," stated Mike Sterling. On top of their list of future goals is the making of a movie. According to Ken Toler, "We plan to have club members star in it. Part of the school may be used and turned into space scenes and we'll use a few of the classrooms as sets."

Very few people turned out for the club meetings. Ms. Weston said, "We had a hard time maintaining interest due to a lack of organization." Many members did show up for the club activities, however. This included going to movies and reading science fiction . . . "Those of us who can read," added John Thompson jokingly.

"Let's Get Physical!"

One of San Marcos High's most enthusiastic and demanding clubs is Jazz 'n' Stuff. Jazz 'n' Stuff gives each member the opportunity to gain and strengthen confidence, discipline and self expression.

The club holds a dance show each spring which is full of exciting and unique modern dances choreographed by the students. At this show the audience has a chance to see the talent and creative abilities at San Marcos.

A new instructor, Ms. Kelsey, who is also interested in aerobics exercise, has joined the staff this year and is the advisor for the Jazz 'n' Stuff Club.

Appearing at school in a spring concert and entertaining others throughout the community is the Jazz Band. A versatile group, they also performed at basketball games during half time.

Filled with talent, Troubadors, had a rewarding year. Despite the shortage of male voices, Mr. Samenow felt that they had good sound. After a performance at a school board meeting, Troubadors showed that vocal music needs to be reinstated in the lower grades if there are to be any future Troubadors at San Marcos High.

Using a variety of music, the Troubadors performed throughout the year. Most of the music came from previous years. Troubadors had a financial setback this year which made it difficult to buy new music.

The reasons for participating in Troubadors are many. Most students are planning a career in music and for others it's just for experience and fun. For whatever reason, Troubadors is an exciting class.

"Tried and Blue; They're All Through"

The year 1983 marked the end of an era for the Cavaliers. Principal Wes Walsvick, A.S.B. advisor Barbara Dolan, and advisor Kathie Dunn, citing declining student interest, decided to suspend the activity temporarily. They are hopeful that after a season of regrouping and expanding other spirit organizations, a resurgence of the Drill Team might occur.

Although the Cavalier membership has dwindled in size from eighty students four years ago, to the current sixteen, the tradition of quality has not deteriorated. Of the sixteen Varsity Cheerleaders for next year, six including head cheerleader are present Drill Team girls. Proud of their accomplishments, the tall flags brought honor and recognition to San Marcos in 1982-1983. Many hours of working and practicing together was finally rewarded at the Santana Field Show Tournament and Chula Vista Band Review, where they were ranked second place. These competitions represent an extra effort for this group that already performs at many school functions and parades.

For the short flags' team, it was a challenging season. They worked continuously on routines, performing at pep assemblies, basketball games and half-time shows. Wendy Smith, the team's first semester advisor, helped to keep the team motivated. With only one returning member from last year, it was important to work hard to keep their award winning tradition.

Short flags also had other exciting activities throughout the year. They all went to Miss Drill Team U.S.A., Clairemont Invitational, Cerritos All-American, Arroyo State Festival and the most enjoyed Magic Mountain.

"Short flags, just like all the other teams, are integral to the Cavaliers Cavalcade," commented Ms. Kathie Dunn, head pageantry advisor. Each team tries to do its part to make San Marcos' pageantry one of the best.

What can be said about cheerleading that nobody knows about? Not too much. Everyone knows that a cheerleader's job is to enliven crowds and induce spirit, but this year's varsity cheerleaders did an extra special job at what they do best. New cheers and stunts made pep assemblies much more exciting.

Do people realize the time on the side that goes into learning those cheers? What about those freezing nights at the football games? How many people would care to be down there on the field cheering in short skirts. So, there you have it, spirit without a grumble. What a group of special girls!

Working on Knight Moves

The junior varsity cheerleaders did an outstanding job in promoting school spirit for the Squires. Led by their captain Lori Williams and co-captain Denise Santoro, the j.v. cheerleaders represented San Marcos High.

Barbara Dolan acted as advisor for both the j.v. and varsity cheerleading squads. Her help was greatly appreciated. The j.v. cheerleaders would like to say, "Thank you for all the help they received throughout the past year."

"Highly Energetic!"

Drama is a favorite class and pastime for many students. They enjoy getting up in front of people and changing their personalities temporarily to fit the characters they portray. Many characters were portrayed in a multitude of short skits performed during class, but talent was not limited to the classroom. Two one-act plays took place outside the school. It was the first time for these one-act plays. The first was "So Long, Snivelhart" and the other was "The Lottery." These short plays gave the drama students a taste of what acting was really like. "Once Upon A Mattress," known under the name of "Princess and the Pea," was planned for the spring. Interested students in and out of the drama club were encouraged to participate.

According to Mr. Samenow, "The kids are very talented, motivated to perform, and really enjoy it."

Carving The Future

Sharing it closely was most important to students interested in improving their woodcarving skills. The Vocational Instructional Cabinet-making Association provided talented individuals with an opportunity to compare their craftsmanship with others in the group. The V.I.C.A. members learned from each other and shared their methods for building sturdier cabinets.

After Bill Brown placed so well in last year's Southern Regional Competition, the group became excited about this year. They raised money selling football and basketball game programs and aimed for contests where their work would be scrutinized by a panel of judges. V.I.C.A. planned to attend the state competitions in Long Beach and Sacramento. If successful, winners go on to Kentucky and Europe.

Go Fish

As a new club on campus, the fishing club didn't lack members. About 30 students showed up to the meetings which impressed Mr. Shinn, the advisor. As the head of the outfit, Mr. Shinn's goals were to teach conservation and good sportsmanship, but the club's main objective was to catch fish. Some hot fishing spots such as Lake Poway and Dixon Lake were tackled by Mr. Shinn's ambitious fishermen and women.

◀Here is how you catch a fish as explained by Mr. Shinn. First take your favorite soda or coffee and take a sip to brace yourself. Then take your line and head out.

Powers Of The Pen

Learning to improve skills and share ideas were the goals of the newly founded Creative Writing Club. The group's enthusiastic members risked ridicule by bringing original poetry and short stories to read aloud to each other at meetings. Another important purpose was to discuss their work with understanding friends and submit entries to youth publications and contests.

Students got involved because they enjoyed writing and have thought about pursuing it as a career. In charge of this club is Mrs. Stern whose helpful suggestions may hopefully lead to successful publishing experiences.

To Be Or Not To Be...

Senioritis infected a select group of students who were preparing for graduation. Membership changed daily as the seniors sunned themselves on the Isle of Avalon, otherwise known as the senior lawn. Because of the society's obscure purpose, the administration sympathetically helped out by showing up at the barbeques to help the club formulate their reasons for being.

Money. There just doesn't seem to be enough of it these days. Everything revolves around little green pieces of paper, including the yearbook. Every year the annual depends on the people and businesses who help by purchasing advertising space which in turn, lowers the price of the yearbooks to the students. Their support to the Talisman is appreciated.

MONEY

"I don't think money will be worth much in the year 2083. Food and stuff like that will be distributed by computers like on the Jetsons."

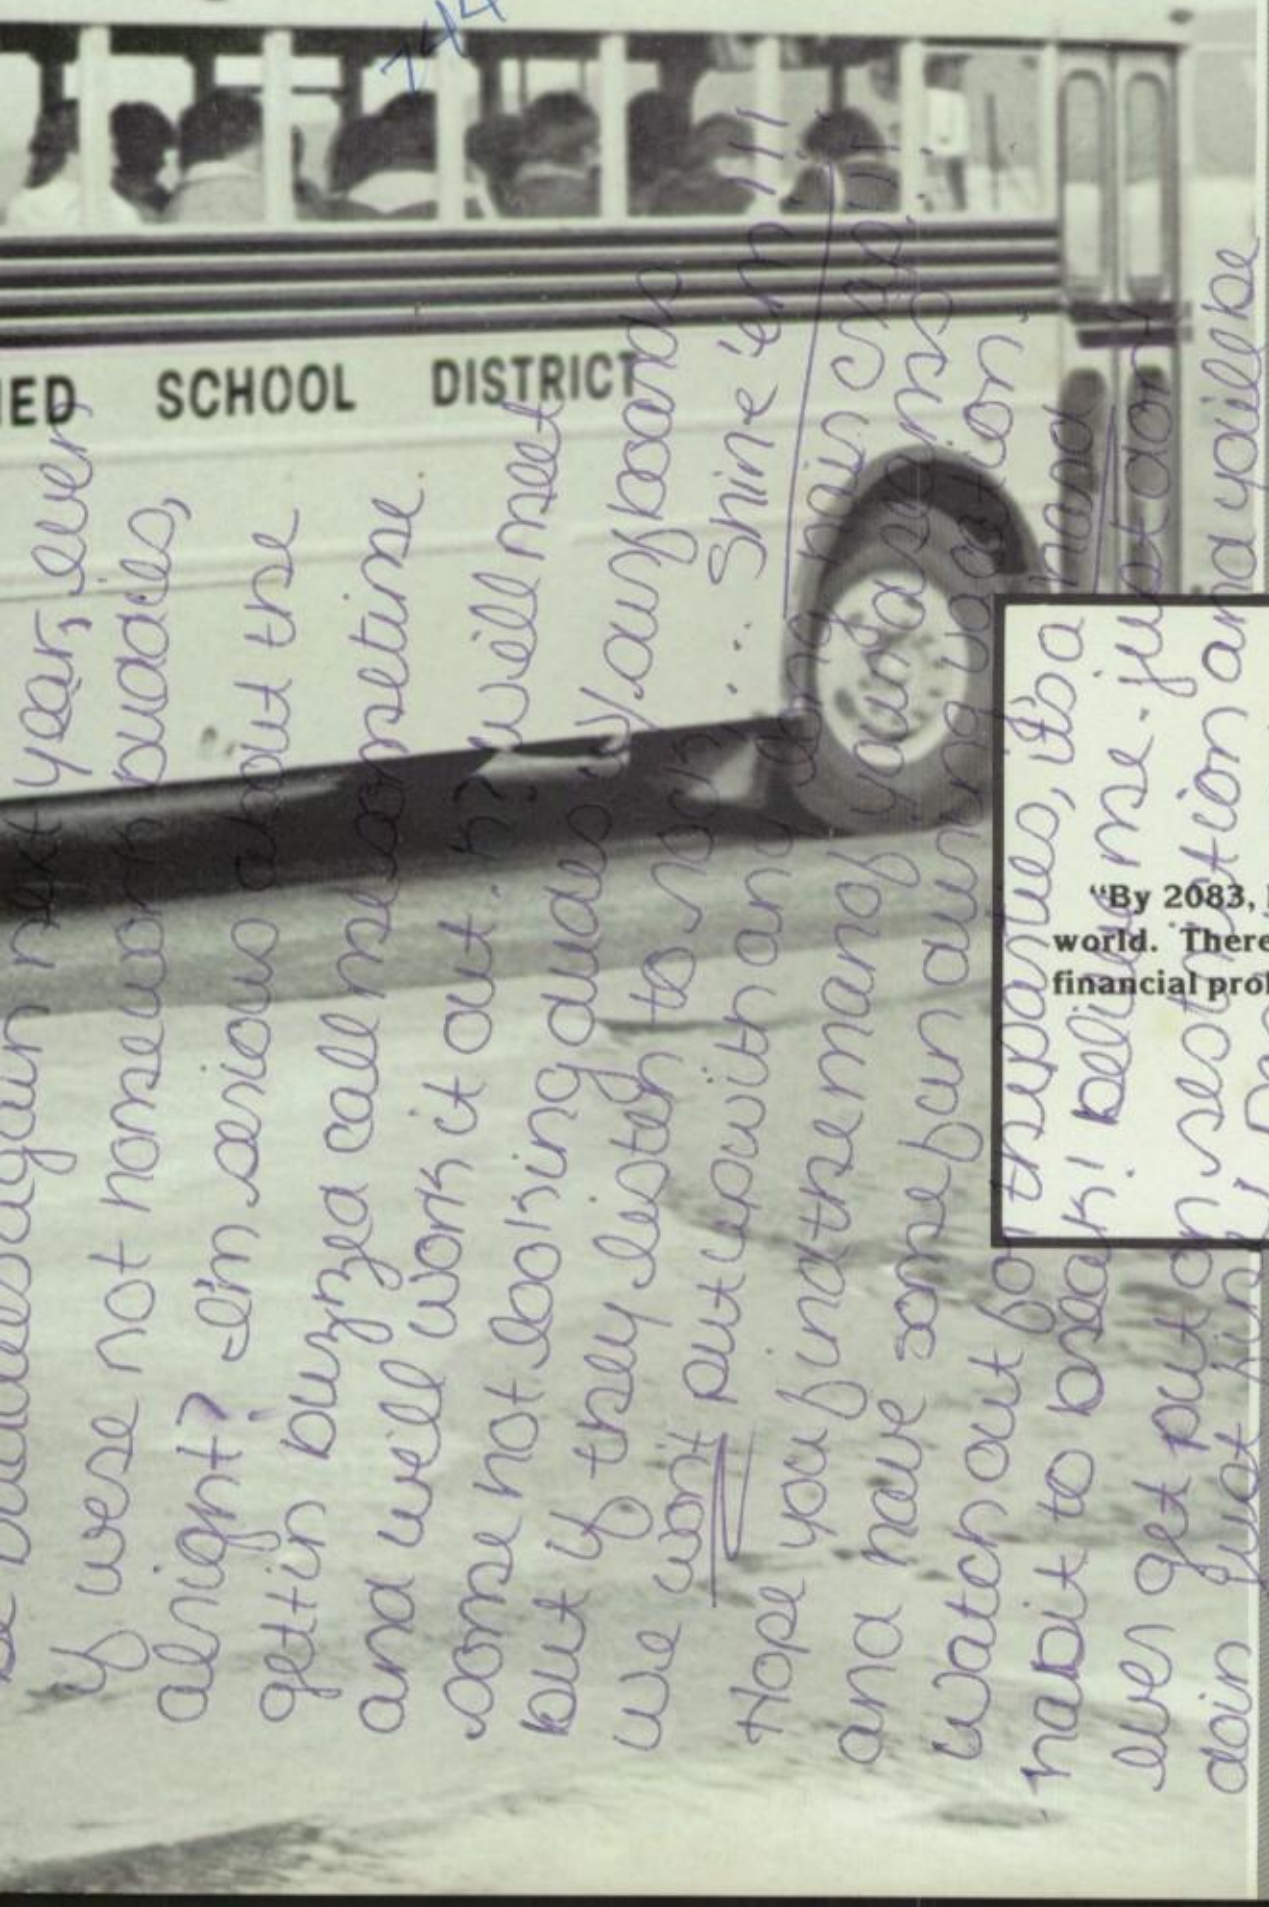
CLOSING

"By 2083, I hope that there is peace throughout the world. There shouldn't be any depressions or any financial problems at all."

— Lori Romberg



◄After a long day of school, getting on the bus and heading home is a favorite part of the day for many.

Another year, another phase in our lives has once again come to a close. Seniors will have to say goodbye to San Marcos High and face the outside world with high hopes while the incoming freshmen face their first year of high school with bravery.

►Being a celebrity certainly has its minuses. Is Mr. Valle getting advice or an autograph from Mr. Wilson?

Teacher of the Year?

The teacher of the year for 1982 wasn't a teacher at all, but a counselor! The award was presented to Mr. Randy Wilson, a newcomer to San Marcos High School. Before taking the job as counselor, Mr. Wilson was a well-liked math teacher at the junior high.

We're glad and very fortunate Mr. Wilson chose to pursue his counseling career at our school. His enthusiasm is generated to all the students and fellow faculty members who know him. Hopefully, he will continue counseling at San Marcos High.

▲On the subject of college, Mr. Wilson gives some helpful choices to senior Eliana Ponce de Leon.

►San Marcos High Schools favorite counselor, Mr. Randy Wilson. CONGRATULATIONS!

R-E-L-I-E-F

As Editor-in-Chief of the 1983 Talisman, my goal was to produce the most original yearbook possible. Looking back, I feel that I have succeeded. I hope this book will always bring back a multitude of pleasant memories.

I would like to thank the following people for their personal contribution to this yearbook. I'd like to recognize Kurt Youngdale for his invaluable help with the computerized index, Bronco Farwell and Bill Watson for rescuing the boy's sports section, Shelley Gierat, Tara Manning, Maggie Bozanich, and Sylvia Petros for writing copy, and Becky Cadman and Shauna Decker for all their photographic help. Also I'd like to thank our Taylor representative, Dick Kerr for his remarkable patience and advice, Dr. Walsvick for his support, the San Marcos School Board for their interest and concern, and the parents of the staff for understanding what it means to be "on staff." To all the teachers who excused staff members from class to meet deadlines. Above all, I'd like to express my gratitude to the dedicated members of the 1983 Talisman Staff, especially Laura Radermacher and Dennis McGovern, Ms. Cotsis and Mr. Wyatt. I hope this book spells relief for all of you. Thank you and goodbye!

There are gains for all our losses,
There are balms for all our pain:
But when youth, the dream, departs,
It takes something from our hearts,
And it never comes again.

Stephanie-
